

MWC TODAY

DECEMBER, 1973

A portfolio of new sketches, six important research papers delivered in a specialized field of nuclear physics, and a year of teaching at Oxford University kept Bulent Atalay "unbelievably busy" during his year abroad.

The Mary Washington College physics professor, who is also a well-known artist, was on leave from the Fredericksburg College from September 1972 to July 1973 to do research in Theoretical Nuclear Physics at Oxford University and to serve as Tutor at the seven-hundred-year-old Hertford College at Oxford University. In his spare time, which was "very hard to come by," Mr. Atalay, who has been commended by both the Queen of England and the First Lady of the United States for his ink sketches of Virginia, managed to tour Oxford and the surrounding country and to sketch some of the outstanding features of the area.

"Oxford: Through the Mists of Time" is the title of the new portfolio of two dozen drawings which is at present under consideration for display at several art galleries and museums around the United States.

"These sketches are by no means meant to be a tourist guide for Oxford or the English countryside," the Turkish-born Atalay says. "Oxford is a city in which 653 buildings in a one square mile area have been declared architecturally significant. It is an area bordered on the north by the historic Shakespeare country and on the west by the magnificent Cotswold villages. It would take a lifetime to draw all the deserving places."

He continued, "As it is, these sketches represent the spare time effort during one year's stay in Oxford."

Bath Abbey and the entrance to the Pump Rooms in the City of Bath

English customs were not new to the former Eton student, but the traditions maintained in English life, especially at Oxford, made a deep impression, even though some seemed ludicrous.

"Until a century ago," Atalay said, "every undergraduate at Oxford University had to swear an oath that he would not associate with Simon, a townsman who killed an undergraduate some seven hundred years ago. Also, for several hundred years professors and lecturers had to swear that they 'would not go to Stamford,' the town to which several hundred unhappy Oxford scholars had migrated in the year 1333."

Mr. Atalay, who did his doctoral work at Georgetown University, postdoctoral work at Berkeley and Princeton, and has been a member of the Mary Washington College staff since 1966, said that the salaries of the teachers at the great English universities are small in relation to those of professors at American universities, and that savings accounts are rare. The scholars at English universities work exceptionally hard, but as a matter of principle they try hard to appear leisurely and relaxed during the day. According to Mr. Atalay, the origin of this practice goes back to English grammar school days, when students who seem 'to work hard' are given the distinctly derogatory title of "swats."

"As it is," he says, "it's as if no one wants to appear to be busy. But very much work is done behind the scenes and under the midnight oil." Atalay, who claims to have tried his best to appear leisurely, participated in the formulation of six different papers in theoretical nuclear physics. "And that," he admits, "involved a lot of work!" Atalay's work in physics led to the bestowal of an honorary degree, 'M.A. by Decree' from Oxford, and an invitation to do research next summer at the prestigious Institute for Advanced Studies at Princeton.

He would do his sketching on weekend tours through the countryside. During his stay in Oxford, Mr. Atalay, through the United States Ambassador Walter Annenberg, presented a portfolio of Virginia sketches to the Queen of England as a gift to the Royal couple on their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. The Queen's Private Secretary wrote Mr. Atalay that "Her Majesty has looked through the lithographs with great interest and admiration and is, indeed, very pleased to possess this delightful collection of drawings."

Later Mrs. Richard Nixon, who also received a portfolio of Mr. Atalay's prints, wrote him a warm personal letter of thanks.

"Needless to say," Mr. Atalay concluded, "it was a very rewarding year."

Faculty Members In The Spotlight

Several members of the Mary Washington College faculty have been very much in the news lately, and the newsworthy items include: several administrative promotions; a faculty member who was successful in a political race; the acceptance of an honorary degree in Buddhist philosophy; a retirement; and the naming of the first Eminent Scholar for MWC.

Within the College there were two changes of significance: Mr. A. Ray Merchant, Director of Admissions since 1968, was appointed Vice President, and Mr. Samuel O. Bird was named Secretary of the Faculty.

Mr. Merchant

Mr. Merchant has been a member of the Mary Washington College faculty and staff since 1959. He served as Registrar until September, 1967, when he assumed full-time responsibility as Chairman of the Department of Education. A graduate of Emory & Henry College, he holds both a masters and a doctoral degree in education from the University of Virginia.

As Vice President, Mr. Merchant succeeds Mr. Michael Houston, who died unexpectedly September 2. Mr. Merchant will remain as Director of Admissions until a successor has been appointed.

Mr. Bird, Professor and Chairman of the Department of Geology, is a graduate of Marshall College and holds an M.S. degree from the University of Wisconsin and a Ph.D. degree from the University of North Carolina.

A member of the MWC faculty since 1962, Mr. Bird is listed in "American Men of Science" and "Who's Who in American Education." He succeeds Mr. Merchant to the post of Secretary.

Mr. Bird

On the political scene, Professor Lewis P. Fickett, Chairman of the Department of Economics and Political Science, was elected November 6 to a seat in the Virginia General Assembly from the 24th District. Mr. Fickett, a former Foreign Service Officer in the U.S. State Department, was one of two elected from the region which includes the city of Fredericksburg and the counties of Stafford, Hanover and Caroline. In the wake of the election, the MWC Board of Visitors granted Mr. Fickett a leave of absence effective January 1, 1974, through the duration of the 1974 session of the Virginia Assembly. Mr. Fickett, who lost in a bid for the same seat two years ago, has been at Mary Washington since 1963.

Mr. Fickett

Mr. Kurt Leidecker, MWC Professor Emeritus of Philosophy, was recently bestowed with a Buddha Dharma Maha Acharya, a "Master of Buddhist Philosophy." The presentation was made in New York City in early November during a reception held in his honor by the International Asia Society. The certificate, presented by the Maha Bodhi Asoka Mission, an Indian Buddhist organization, was made in recognition of Mr. Leidecker's fifty years of interest in Asian philosophy.

A member of the American Philosophical Association, the American Oriental Society and several other learned bodies, Mr. Leidecker is past president of the Virginia Philosophic Association, and was Visiting Professor of Philosophy at the University of Southern California. A member of the MWC faculty since 1948, he has also been involved in a program of State Department Specialist lectures in Germany on the cultural relations between Europe, India and the United States. He has also conducted classes at the Foreign Service Institute and has participated in the training of Peace Corps groups, as well as having acted as Consultant to several government agencies and research projects.

Mr. Leidecker

Miss Marion K. Chauncey, an Associate Professor of Music who has taught at the College for more than forty years, has announced her retirement effective December 31, 1973. A graduate of Georgia State Woman's College, she received her masters degree from Columbia before coming to MWC as an instructor specializing in music survey courses.

Mr. Ben J. Wattenberg, a political analyst and former Assistant to President Lyndon B. Johnson, will come to the College beginning January 1, 1974, as Professor-at-Large under the Eminent Scholars Program, a private and state-funded program designed to attract and retain outstanding scholars or lecturers for one or more semesters. As specified in the provisions of the Eminent Scholars Program, Mr. Wattenberg, who will be at the College for two semesters, will not be assigned to any specific department but will remain available for work in any field related to his background.

Mr. Wattenberg is a graduate of Hobart College, Geneva, New York, and has, since 1969, been self-employed as an author and consultant in Washington, D.C. His best-known work is "The Real Majority," an analysis of the electorate in the United States. Co-authored with Richard Scammon, this best-selling book was published in 1970.

Alumni

Gavel Points...

by Connie Bennett Elliott '53, President

New Scholarships - Lots of hard work and planning has been done this fall to be ready to offer increased scholarship opportunities for Mary Washington students next year. Alumni committees have been appointed by President Simpson in each congressional district in Virginia. They will be screening candidates for the new Regional Scholarship awards. Out of the state, too, alumni representatives will be helping in this new program. What a wonderful way for alumni to serve qualified young people in their communities - and to have a personal role in the future growth of Mary Washington! Applications are prepared now, too, for the Grellert C. Simpson International Scholarship, made possible through your loyal support. An undergraduate will be studying abroad next year and each year thereafter, thanks to you. The screening committee for this grant will consist of the Dean of the College, faculty members and alumni. The first recipient of the scholarship will be named at Homecoming '74.

Congratulations to Mr. A. Ray Merchant, who has been named Vice President of Mary Washington College. He will serve on the Alumni Association Board of Directors as Dr. Simpson's representative, our liaison for Alumni Affairs. "Thanks - to all the alumni who wrote to me recently with ideas concerning the future direction of the College and qualifications suggested for a new President of the College. Your responses have been sent on to the Board of Visitors and I assure you that your opinions are appreciated. I heard from alumni from early classes and from our most recent graduates. Although many different ideas were expressed, certain threads emerged from almost all of the letters - a commitment to the continued high quality of the College in its academic offerings and its strong tradition of fine undergraduate teaching and an interest in seeing highly qualified women considered for the post of President. The Board of Visitors will be developing its own criteria after considering your responses as well as the recommendations of faculty and students.

"Boquets - to the Fredericksburg Chapter members. Throughout the year, alumni who are living in the Fredericksburg area continue to be active in a number of ways for Mary Washington. At the recent Parent's Weekend they provided tours of the campus for parents, they have served pre-Board meeting luncheons, and, in particular, are deeply involved in making Homecomings the special times they are each year. They help with organizing the mountains of biographical information that come into the Alumni Office, and for all the time spent in their service activities for the Association, we thank them!

"Apologies... Because of personnel changes in the Alumni Office and "circumstances beyond our control," some names were omitted or misspelled in the recent Alumni Fund donor's listing. We regret any error that may have been made. Please inform the Alumni Office if your name did not appear or appeared incorrectly in order that we may be sure to correct this in a future issue of MWC Today. And we thank you!

*Alumni Fund - Thanks to all of you who have already contributed so generously to the 1973-74 Alumni Fund. You help make it possible for the Alumni Office to serve the thousands of alumni through your support. You provide help in areas that the state does not give sufficient funds (scholarships, for example). Let's make this sixtieth anniversary year a time of overwhelming backing from alumni!

*Matching Gifts - One way to help achieve our goal this year is to consider the Matching Gifts program which benefits higher education through contributions from many large corporations. Is your employer a Matching Gift corporation? Check with your personnel office and, if so, your gift may be doubled. Many corporations will match the gift of a spouse of an employee. Don't overlook this excellent program when you give to the Alumni Fund. For further information regarding it, you may contact the Alumni Office.

*Homecoming - It's not too early to look forward to the wonderful Homecoming weekend in 1974. Alumni will be honoring Dr. Simpson, getting a look at The History of Mary Washington College, and celebrating at a banquet which will feature entertainment from alumni. We hope to see you there.

*Have you been back to campus lately? I've been fortunate to do so in past months and it is great to talk to students and see the fine things happening at Mary Washington.

*Biographical information - We are interested in knowing of the additional education pursued by alumni, degrees earned, works published. Do keep the Alumni Office informed about your professional accomplishments. *I was interested to read a speech given by the new President of Swarthmore College recently. One of the things he spoke about stays with me...it seems so true for those of us who attended Mary Washington, and the basis for our continuing interest in the College when we leave it: "...a truth for an institution such as this. Students are not merely transients here, but the object of the college's purpose. Students do not merely pass through as do many in the large universities; rather, the college passes through them and into their character. They become alumni, and upon their advice and inspiration and loyalty, the welfare of the institution depends."

Chapter Notes

Charlottesville-Albemarle Chapter - Sunday, August 5, was the day of a fantastic coke party for the incoming freshmen from our area - about 10 alumni and 6 freshmen had a great two hours together at the home of Rhoda Ruffner '61.

Our plans for this fall and winter include fund raising, a trip to Monticello for area alumni and their families, a Christmas get-together.

A mailing will go out soon with details of these plans - we hope all Charlottesville-Albemarle alumni will join us in them.

Debbie Stanley '72
President, C-A

The Norfolk Chapter entertained 17 incoming freshmen at a tea in the home of Carmen Mejia Weiler, '28, in Cape Henry, Shores, Saturday, August 4, from three to five p.m. On hand to greet them were 14 alumni, Kitty Wyche '72 and Elizabeth Parks '73 had the answers for most of the questions asked by the class of 1977. They are an intelligent and beautiful group of girls. We are proud of having them represent our area at our Alma Mater.

Kathryn N. Winslow '39
President

The Junior Woman's Club of Fredericksburg as a ways and means project has been delivering birthday cakes to freshmen on their birthdays. The project has been successful especially as far as the students are concerned. They have been thrilled with not only the delicious treats but by the touch of thoughtfulness from their families.

Cakes may be ordered by sending a minimum contribution of $4.00 to Mrs. Alexander Lindsey, 902 Sylvania Avenue, Fredericksburg, Va., 22401

ALUMNI FUND GIVING CLUBS

During last year's Alumni Fund campaign, there was a reorganization of the Association's special giving clubs.

In this reorganization the names of the special giving clubs were changed and two new clubs were added.

This year an extensive effort will be made to increase membership in these clubs.

Membership in a special giving club is open to any alumnus or other friend of the College who individually (not including matching gifts) gives a gift of $50.00 or more during any one fiscal year beginning July 1 and ending June 30.

One new club is the Challenge Club, whose membership is open to those who contribute between $50.00 to $99.00.

The Century Club is open to contributors of $100.00 to $249.00.

The Pacesetter Club, another new club, is open to contributors of $250.00 to $499.00.

The Leadership Club is open to contributors of $500.00 or more.

We hope to add to our special giving clubs, a club of members who contribute $1,000.00 annually.

Naturally each gift to the Alumni Fund, regardless of its size, is important and the Association has traditionally encouraged a broad base of support. Your gift, no matter how humble, is important in adding to the $50,000.00 goal, but it is our hope that in evaluating your contribution to the 1973-74 Alumni Fund, you will consider becoming a member of one of our special giving clubs.

From The Library...

The Archives is missing many issues of the Epauet, without which there is NO complete file in existence! This is an S.O.S. to all loyal alumni who just may have kept some as souvenirs, especially from the 1950's. Please do not throw them away but send them to your Alma Mater:

- 1949-50, Nos. 2 and 3 of Volume X
- 1955-56, three issues - no volume nor issue numbers
- 1956-57, three issues - no volume nor issue numbers
- 1958-59, three issues - no volume nor issue numbers.

The Battlefield for 1956, '57, and '58 all say three issues were published and show pictures of the staffs. In 1957-58, however, four issues were published - the Archives has them all!! Since, therefore, the Battlefields may be wrong, if any issues more than three for any of these years is still in existence, it would be cherished in the Archives where all will be bound as soon as the file becomes complete. With the above exceptions, the Archives has a bound file from 1940 through 1967. Can you close the gaps?

Deaths

KATHERINE CORR BLAND '18

Mrs. Katherine Corr Bland, 76, a retired elementary school teacher, died Monday, August 6, in a Richmond hospital.

Mrs. Bland taught in the Richmond public school system for 45 years, mostly at Old Madison School. She retired from teaching in 1964.

She was a 1918 graduate of Fredericksburg State Teacher's College (now Mary Washington College) and a member of the Virginia Education Association. She was also a member of the Reveille United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Bland is survived by a sister, Miss Lucy Corr of Chester, and a brother, Robert L. Corr of Kinston, N.C.

A funeral service was held at Joseph W. Biley Funeral Home on August 8. Burial was at Old Church, King and Queen County.

KATHERINE FRANCIS MORAN

Miss Katherine Francis Moran, 71, died Friday, November 23, after a long illness. The former MWC Assistant Dean of Students and Assistant Professor of Dramatic Arts was in an Augusta, Ga., nursing home at the time of her death.

She was a graduate of the College of William and Mary and received her master's degree from the University of North Carolina.

Before coming to MWC in 1954, she had been employed by the U.S. Government in the Recreation Services Division at Fort McPherson, Ga.

Miss Moran retired from MWC as an Assistant Professor of Dramatic Arts in June, 1968.

She is survived by two sisters, Miss Florence Moran of Milledgeville, Ga., and Mrs. Hammond Carmichael of Augusta, Ga., and a brother, William W. Moran of Lawton, Oklahoma.

On November 26 there was a graveside service for Miss Moran in the Memory Hill Cemetery in Milledgeville.

Travers Moncure Evans, a 1960 graduate of Mary Washington College, has co-authored a timely consumer guide to meats. Published by Charles Scribner's Sons, "THE MEAT BOOK: A Consumer's Guide to Selecting, Buying, Cutting, Storing, Freezing and Carving the Various Cuts," is for everybody who desires to save money on their meat purchases and still eat heartily. This illustrated book, which costs $8.95, was published last month and was co-authored by Mrs. Evans and the late David Greene, a teacher of consumer seminars.

THE MEAT BOOK provides a variety of essential information for buying and eating better meat economically. It offers expert advice on: beef, ham, veal, and pork —with an explanation of the basic cuts, the government's grading system, and characteristics of individual cuts; how to crack supermarkets on meat labels; the hazards of buying meat in bulk; the best methods of carving and serving meat; variety meats, sausage and luncheon meats; and do-it-yourself kitchen meat cutting lessons. THE MEAT BOOK includes a glossary of meat cookery terms, fundamental principles of roasting and broiling, a meat calorie counter, and a dictionary of retail cuts.

Already THE MEAT BOOK, of which there were excerpts in September's "Woman's Day" magazine, is receiving enthusiastic praise from many reviewers. "The New York Magazine" called it "acutely topical...a bauble, perhaps, for the First Family's Christmas stocking?" The Library Journal agrees, saying the book is "timely and useful...The information is accurate and the directions are clear and explicit. The emphasis is truly upon economy."

Illustrator and co-author David Greene, until his sudden death last year, was a meat-cutter and wholesale meat distributor in New York City. Mrs. Evans, formerly an advertising copywriter now turned consumer advocate, lives in New York City with her husband.

Majorcan Carnival

In late October some forty MWC alumni and relatives departed from Friendship Airport for a wonderful week on the island of Majorca off the coast of Spain. The trip, which was sponsored by the Alumni Association, was by all accounts a time to be remembered. The hotel accommodations were splendid with balconies overlooking the lovely Bay of Palma. The food in quality and quantity was beyond description. Many passengers carried more weight on the return flight and it wasn't all from purchases made in Spain!

Some of the places visited were:

- *The world-famous Majorcan pearl factory and a leather-goods store where alumni bought beautiful leather handbags, gloves and shoes;
- *Madrid and Tangiers;
- *The City of Valldemosa and its Carthusian Monastery to which, in 1838, Madame Dudevant, better known as George Sand, brought her ailing lover Frederic Chopin. The couple lived in several cells of the Monastery; numbers two and four have been converted into a real Chopin museum, for it was here that Chopin, whose piano is still intact, composed and finished several pieces, including the 24 preludes dedicated to Pleyel and the most famous of them all, that known as "Raindrop";

*The Caves of Drach, where on the largest underground lake in Europe small boats sailed by while the musicians on board serenaded the travelers;

*The Cathedral of Palma, whose bold architectural design includes a vault supported by fourteen pillars 30 meters high, three huge aisles and a central nave rising to a height of 44 meters;

*The Castle of Bellver which, resting on a hill some four hundred feet high, dominates the whole Bay of Palma. The castle is floodlit at night and from many points of the city its beautiful outline can be seen standing against the darkness;

*Bullfights;

*Cantinas;

*Various cities on the island.

The accommodations were superb, as were the food and wine. As you can see in the pictures below (taken at a get-together graciously arranged by Ruth Scarbrough), everyone had a good time.

The next trip planned for an MWC alumni group is an August 2, 1974 venture to Geneva and Munich. The plane will be leaving from Dulles Airport...Why don't you plan to come along?

HOMEcomings

Have we got a ball for you!

April 26-27, 1974, are the dates for this year's Homecoming celebration. Chairman, Virginia Felts Brown '50, says "Homecoming '74 will climax what we are sure is going to be an exciting year for the College and the Association."

This Homecoming we will be celebrating the 60th anniversary of the Alumni Association, honoring President Grellet C. Simpson upon his retirement, seeing the first copies of Dr. Edward Alvey's History of MWC in print, and, of course, honoring our special reunion classes of 1914, 1919, 1924, 1929, 1934, 1944, 1949, 1954, 1959, 1964 and 1969.

A most perfect piece of furniture for the student's residential hall room...the graduate's den...the career woman's office...surprise your daughter with an MWC chair for Christmas...(P.S. to husbands: give an MWC rocker to your wife for her birthday!)

The MWC Club of Delaware is selling Boston Rockers and arm chairs with plain arms. All are black with gold trim and have the MWC seal painted in gold. These chairs are extremely popular and those who have made purchases have been very satisfied.

Please indicate with your order if you want the old seal (MWC of the University of Virginia) or the new seal (MWC).
